A high-tech massive video board rising 137 feet above the plaza behind the south stands of Rice-Eccles Stadium was installed in the summer. The overall LED display size of the board currently ranks among the largest in the country at 122 feet wide by 64 feet tall. The high-definition display has a 16:9 aspect ratio, allowing video to be shown fully without being cropped or stretched. Another feature of the $13.5 million project (funded by the Department of Athletics and Auxiliary Services) is a distributed sound system that uses a series of speakers mounted around the top of the stadium and directs the sound downward, rather than outward, to improve the quality of the sound for those inside the stadium and reduce noise for the surrounding community. The Spence Eccles Football Complex was also upgraded over the summer with the addition of a new artificial turf practice field. The new FieldTurf practice field is adjacent to the current natural grass field behind the Spence and Cleone Football Center and the turf field inside the Spence Eccles Field House.

FanUp!

The University of Utah implemented a FanUp campaign in August of 2016 to encourage good sportsmanship from Ute fans and their athletic teams. The 20-person committee that formulated the sportsmanship initiative was represented by the Board of Trustees, administrators, faculty, staff, students, student-athletes, alumni and fans.
